Successful IT Leadership in a recession

Harvey Nash is delighted to invite you to our annual IT Leadership event in Genvall (Brussels) on 10th November at the Château du Lac.

This year we are all operating within the most severe economic recession for a generation and it is affecting companies on a global scale. However, opportunities will always emerge from a crisis. We have brought together three speakers who know more than anyone where to find opportunity and how to pursue it.

Michel Hautfenne is Senior Director of Global IT&T Purchasing at UCB Pharma and is in charge of IT & Telecommunications global contracts. He reports to the VP Global Purchasing. Michel will present what actions he had to take with suppliers in order to overcome the crisis. He has been working for UCB for more than 20 years.

Alfred den Besten from the Netherlands is Managing Partner of MarketCap, a leading market strategy and market research company for IT and Telecom within the Benelux. Alfred will talk about the current trend from Desktop Automation to High Performance Workplace. Between 2009 and 2015 there will be an increase of app. 100 percent in the workplace efficiency index. Alfred will share his thoughts on this topic.

From the UK, Albert Ellis, CEO of the Harvey Nash Group, will share the most important and striking results of the Europe-wide IT leadership survey. Albert has over twenty years business experience in senior executive positions. He is passionate about engaging the next generation of highly mobile global talent which will increasingly form the major challenge for larger companies once growth returns and the financial crisis has passed.
